'FOREWARNED, FOREARMED'

Preparedness Essential To Successful Farming

(By W. M. Goodman.)

"Forewarned, forearmed," might be put up on the gate of every field with profit to the farmer. It will pay him to remember these two words.

Success in growing clover and the grasses, wheat and other crops that follow in rotation depends upon proper fertilization, thorough preparation of the soil, and good seed. To omit one of these essentials is to invite failure. Poorer crops and poorer soils are the certain results.

Plan Ahead and Be Forehanded.

"Making the crop before it is planted" is a good old rule followed by the best farmers, and most of them know that breaking land for wheat should precede the sowing long enough to allow the under soil to become somewhat compact. Consequently they plan ahead for plowing wheat land in July or August, or early in September (in the Appalachian and Piedmont sections) to be seeded so that the wheat will come to a stand about the time of the first killing frost of autumn. Where the best results are obtained the land is limed and harrowed well before planting and fertilizer drilled in with the seed. Liming will sweeten the soil and increase the wheat yield, and its use is of supreme importance where clover or grass is sown.

Progressive farmers of this region have some such plan for preparation and planting as we have outlined, and it is to enable them to carry the plan through—not only to insure success with wheat and other winter crops, but with clover and soil-improvement work, livestock and general farming—that their attention is called to the importance of getting now some of the essentials which may not be available later on.

Supply Needs in Time.

The car situation is such that it behooves every farmer to get his supplies of agricultural limestone and commercial fertilizers in as far ahead of time as possible. His orders should be placed at once to take advantage of any opportunity shippers may have to furnish the material. Inaction now will probably mean the falling back on the old plan of "just getting along without it," which also means getting along without other things, such as profits from the next crop and forage for livestock another year.

The exigencies of the present situation, brought about by inadequate shipping facilities, while sufficient to spur the farmer to quick action in this matter, do not embrace all of the good reasons why he should supply his needs immediately. In another month crops will be laid by, and the best season of the year will come for hauling and spreading agricultural limestone, and for hauling and storing fertilizers to be used later on.

This is a good time to "take time by the forelock," and make the most of opportunities to insure abundant harvests.

IN MEMORIAM

McCLARY—In sad remembrance of our little darling Eston Theron, who departed this life one year ago today, June 24, 1919.

The month of June has come again, The saddest month of the year.

To have lost our dear and loving baby

Is a bitter pain to bear.

Heaven retaineth now our treasure,

Earth the lonely casket keeps.

And the surbeams love to linger

Where our darling Eston sleeps.

Father, Mother, Sisters and Brothers.

'Tis sweet to be remembered,

And a pleasant thing to find;

Although you may be absent,

You are still kept in my mind.

The flowers I lay upon your grave

May wither and decay,

But the love I bore for you

Dear Eston, will never fade away.

A Cousin
